Join in a special day of national commemoration on Sunday 14 June at 3pm.

Get involved in LiberTeas, a special day of national commemoration, marking the 800th anniversary of the sealing of Magna Carta.

Communities across the UK will sit down to tea, taking a moment to celebrate, debate or reflect on our liberties.

There are lots of ways you can be involved with LiberTeas. You can sign up to host your own event or if you know someone who you think would make a host get them to sign up.

You could opt for a big family Sunday lunch in your home, starting or ending with a commemorative toast, a local street party for all your neighbours, a parade, a party in the park, a ramble to celebrate your right to roam, a pub quiz, a mass contemplation, or perhaps a smaller indoor event, such as a high tea in a residential home or a balloon debate in the village hall. You could open up your town hall or archives, run a special exhibition in your museum or stage a play or concert.

Just so long as at 3pm you include the tea moment, the options are endless!

If you're not organising an event, go along to support one locally instead. You can find your nearest public event on our map at LiberTeas has been developed by the Houses of Parliament as part of the 2015 'Parliament in the Making' anniversaries programme in partnership with the National Trust.
